STORY TIME!

Write a story, real or made up, about when you were an unborn baby in your mother's womb. Make it at least half a page long. Feel free to include pictures. You may prefer to draw a series of cartoon pictures to tell your story rather than writing a story.

When I was an unborn baby ...

Family Connection: Today your child learned that every human being was created with special dignity and value, and that trying to be something you are not is a form of contradiction. We learned that an unborn child cannot be a baby if you want it to be, but not if you don't want it to be. That's a contradiction. We saw evidence that an unborn baby is a human being even at the earliest stages, and learned to respect and cherish pregnant mothers and their unborn children.
